"The Town of Waitsfield funding will afford us the opportunity to continue with our free home visits (for up to 3 months) to new parents of birth and adopted infants as we have done since 1991. Our 40+ volunteer mothers of all ages develop a rapport with the new mother to support in whatever ways are appropriate to see that she regains her health and reconnects with the community to avoid isolation. Through this rapport, the volunteer and mother determine what urgent needs a family might have and make an effort to address those needs.

Our unique Welcome bag highlights our longtime initiatives in: Early literacy, attachment-style parenting, and recognizing the importance of male mentorship.

In addition, we provide an array of infant carriers at cost or by donation. Research suggests that these items contribute to the growth of a securely attached child. Literature and evidence-based studies demonstrate a positive correlation between a secure child and their future sense of self esteem and self reliance. Furthermore, research finds that programs designed to offer support to new parents during this joyful but often stressful time, can decrease the incidence of maternal depression and infant failure to thrive.

We are grateful to voters for your support and encouragement."
